

Clean Motion: All collaboration projects are now in progress.

Clean Motion has now started all planned collaborative projects with pilot customers. The goal of the collaborations is to create versions of the new vehicle Re:volt that are optimized for customers' operations. Latest partners are: Airmee, Malta Post and the Italian vehicle distributor X-Raam located in Italy.

This spring, Clean Motion has started up ten collaborative projects with customers, with the aim of optimising the new Re:volt vehicle for a number of different work areas in the last mile segment. The company announces that all potential partners are now in place and work is ongoing. Most recently, Airmee, Malta Post and the Italian vehicle distributor X-Raam e-mobility solutions.

BRIEFLY ABOUT THE PILOT CUSTOMERS:

- Airmee - Urban e-commerce deliveries. The project examines how a shift to electrification of the vehicle fleet should be done most effectively.
- Malta Post p.l.c. - Post and parcel delivery. The project aims to make the company's parcel and letter deliveries 100% solar powered.
- X-Raam Srl. - Intended distributor and partner for the Italian market but also has operations in Spain, France and the Netherlands. They forecast their initial demand in Italy to be at least 500-600 vehicles in 2023.

"Collaborative projects are an extremely important part of our working process to adapt Re:volt for the market, as we want the vehicle to have the greatest possible impact we choose to work with real customers, in real working situations."
-Says Christoffer Sveder, Commercial Director at Clean Motion.

Christoffer continues; "Official launch is planned for early autumn and we will also start receiving orders for delivery in 2023."

ORDERING OF RE:VOLT

Clean Motion will start accepting orders in Europe at the launch in early autumn this year. The production will initially take place in Trollhättan. The price will be between 9,000 and 19,000 EUR depending on options and features.
