

Clean Motion partners with Champion Motors New Mobility to bring solar powered mobility to Israel

Clean Motion has signed a letter of intent (LOI) for the distribution and sales of EVIG with Champion Motors New Mobility Ltd. in Israel. The process of developing a commercial distribution agreement has begun, and the first test vehicle is soon on its way for evaluation, registration, and marketing.

Champion Motors New Mobility Ltd, a new venture within Allied Group, that focuses on providing small electric vehicles for city transportation in Israel. The company has signed a letter of intent (LOI) with Clean Motion to distribute and sell their solar-powered vehicles in the country. A full commercial agreement is currently being developed.

Christoffer Sveder, Commercial Director at Clean Motion, commented on the partnership and the opportunity to showcase solar-charged mobility in the Israeli market. "Champion Motors is a strong commercial partner in a market where we can truly demonstrate the benefits of our solar cells and create energy-independent mobility."

The partnership between Clean Motion and Champion Motors New Mobility will offer a sustainable and energy-efficient transportation option in Israel. Both companies are excited about the potential of EVIG and energy-independent transportation in the growing micro-vehicle segment.
